

Events and training conduct

UK Finance considers the health, safety and wellbeing of its attendees and staff to be of the utmost importance. Therefore, we reserve the right to refuse admission to any event or to ask any attendee to leave an event if we think they are behaving in a disruptive manner, in a way that violates the venue's rules, in a way that is likely to cause damage, nuisance, offence or injury, or in such a way as would not be compatible with our values. Such conduct includes the use of any recording or photographic equipment without authorisation. You also agree not to bring any illegal or hazardous items with you to any event and agree to comply with any reasonable request made by the staff at the venue or representatives of UK Finance who are co-ordinating the event (for example, requests relating to health and safety). In the event that you or any accompanying attendee is refused admission or removed from an event in the circumstances described, we will not be required to issue any refund to you or the attendee and may consider further action as warranted by circumstances.
